

The Department of Pediatrics, University at Buffalo, The State University of New York, invites applications for two open-rank, state supported, hard money, tenure-track positions in pediatric obesity. Ph.D. or M.D. applicants will be considered and should be interested in research careers and working in a collaborative, multidisciplinary research setting in a medical school environment.

Assistant Professors will be expected to have completed post-doctoral training, have a strong publication record, and must develop a funded research program. Candidates at the Associate Professor/Professor level are expected to have a well established publication record and current extramural funding.

Interested persons must apply online at www.ubjobs.buffalo.edu/. Online application requires cover letter, research statement and curriculum vita. In addition, three letters of recommendation should be submitted online or sent directly to:

Leonard H. Epstein, Ph.D., Distinguished Professor of Pediatrics and Social and Preventive Medicine, University at Buffalo, 3435 Main St., G-56 Farber Hall, Buffalo, NY 14214-3000.

Inquiries can be e-mailed to Dr. Epstein at lhenet@acsu.buffalo.edu.

State University of New York at Buffalo is an Equal Opportunity, Affirmative Action Employer/Recruiter. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.