

Message From the President: Simin Nikbin Meydani, DVM, PhD

We are just weeks away from ASN's Scientific Sessions & Annual Meeting, which kicks off March 28 in my city of Boston! If you haven't looked at the program, I encourage you to start making an itinerary. There are many exciting sessions and special events to attend. Plus, there are a variety of sponsored satellite programs that are planned and conducted by external groups in conjunction with ASN's Scientific Sessions - see the sidebar for days/times. There will also be several interesting international forums.

ASN's Board of Directors will be meeting in Boston; if you have any items you'd like us to consider at this gathering, I encourage you to email me. Please note, this year the Society Annual Business Meeting will be held earlier than in the past: on Saturday, March 28, 3:30-5:00 pm. We are hoping to draw more attendees to this earlier time frame, which will also be more interactive in nature.

If you have not had a chance to read the report from ASN's Independent Meeting Transition Team, here is that link. I encourage everyone to review the document which summarizes the team's vision.

Finally, don't miss the opportunity to provide comments by March 10 on the FASEB framework report, "Sustaining Discovery in the Biological and Medical Sciences." They are seeking the viewpoints of nutrition science investigators.

I look forward to seeing you all in Boston!

Simin Nikbin Meydani, DVM, PhD
ASN President

If you are an ASN member in Canada and interested in joining the CNS, please contact mem@nutrition.org to upgrade your membership.

Annual Meeting

Scientific Sessions and Annual Meeting at Experimental Biology 2015

ASN's 79th Scientific Sessions and Annual Meeting is just two months away! The meeting will take place March 28-April 1 in Boston, Mass. The headquarters hotel for ASN is the Renaissance Boston Waterfront. The Renaissance is a 10-minute drive from Logan International Airport and is easily accessible by public transportation. Free shuttle service will be provided to hotels in the EB 2015 housing block. See the complete route schedule.

Highlighted Sessions

Translational and Transformational Concepts in Amino Acid Sensing

Chairs: Susan Hutson, PhD, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Tracy G. Anthony, PhD, Rutgers University
Sunday, March 29, 8:00-10:00 am

This symposium provides a forum to hear the newest explorations into amino acid sensing at the level of the tissue/organ, the cell surface, the ribosome and the nucleus, and how this information is improving prevention and/or treatment of disease.

Resistant Starch, Microbiota and Gut Health

Chair: Diane F. Birt, PhD, Iowa State University
Wednesday, April 1, 8:00-10:00 am

The focus will be on developing resistant starch, a form of dietary fiber, for reducing the risk of human colon disease. This symposium will provide valuable information to scientists in industry and academia targeting plant modifications for health; and microbiologists, nutritionists, and food scientists working in areas of diet and gut health.

Download the ASN Program-at-a-Glance and start planning your time at the meeting now! While you're on the meeting website, visit the Special Events page, with the latest information about the Research Interest Sections, competitions, and special Society programs. There are more than 50 hours of CPE available for dietitians.

Journal Highlights

Accessing ASN Journals Online (AJCN, JN, Advances in Nutrition)

Effective in 2015, ASN implemented a new feature for direct access to ASN journals. The feature is called "role-based access control" (RBAC), and it works as a direct link from the Member Dashboard to the journals. If you encounter an access control page requesting you to log in for access to ASN journals, your institution may not have an active subscription to the journal you are trying to access, or you are not logged in. Please log-in to your ASN Member Dashboard at www.nutrition.org. From the Dashboard, select "Access ASN Journals" which will take you to the landing page for ASN Journals. Select the journal you would like to access and you will be recognized as ASN Member. You should now have full access to ASN journals. For detailed instructions, please visit our help page.

Recommend ASN Journals to your Institutional Library

Please use the Journal Recommendation Form for your library to subscribe to the premier journals in the field of nutrition:

- The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition (AJCN) - Impact Factor: 6.918
- The Journal of Nutrition (JN) - Impact Factor: 4.227
- Advances in Nutrition (AN) - Impact Factor: 4.891

If you prefer, email journal@nutrition.org, and we can complete the form for you.

Advances in Nutrition

The January/February 2015 issue of Advances in Nutrition, ASN's international review journal, sheds new light on key issues in nutrition and human health. It helps us understand what we know and where we need to focus future research efforts in order to improve human nutrition and health outcomes.

Countering the argument that fruit juices are merely sugar-sweetened beverages, Hyson points to recent evidence linking 100% fruit juice consumption to positive outcomes in both preventing and managing such diseases as cancer, cardiovascular disease, hypertension, inflammation, and urinary tract infection.

Marczinski explores the growing trend of mixing alcohol with energy drinks, which appears to fuel the urge for more alcohol. She concludes that "further research on alcohol mixed with energy drinks may elucidate the underlying mechanisms that contribute to alcohol dependence."
