

Clinical Nutritionist/Dietitian

At NewYork-Presbyterian Hospital, the Department of Nutrition Services leads the way nationally - and changes lives locally. Our division is internationally renowned, yet devoted to individualized and compassionate medical nutrition. From patient treatment to community involvement, we apply world-class resources to everyday care.

You can help make it possible.

We are currently seeking an experienced and highly skilled Clinical Nutritionist/Dietitian to lead our premier team as Patient Food Services Supervisor. Here, you'll experience a culture of excellence where we utilize indirect calorimetry and other cutting-edge techniques for a variety of complex cases. You'll provide exceptional inpatient dietetic support through the management of the food service team. With one of the nation's oldest dietitian internship programs, we provide opportunities for mentorship as well as continuing education. At NYP, you'll work closely with a top interdisciplinary team, advancing your career and the field of medical nutrition in a truly rewarding setting.

To qualify, you must be a Registered Dietitian with at least five years of acute care experience. Registration with the ADA (American Dietetic Association) and Certification by NYS as a certified Dietitian/Nutritionist required. Preferred candidates will have a master's degree.
