Message From the President:

Patrick J. Stover, PhD

ASN has recently established a blue-ribbon committee that will examine the best practices for "big tent" organizations like ASN whose membership brings together academia, government and the for-profit and not-for-profit sectors to work together in the interest of the general public and its health and well-being, and where public trust is essential for the organization to be successful. We will be reaching out to you for your views, and keeping you updated on the committee's progress. For more information, please visit the Advisory Committee page.

Vote Now in the 2016-17 ASN Board of Directors and Nominating Committee Election

The 2016 election to select new members on the Board of Directors and Nominating Committee is underway. We encourage all members to support this process by participating in these elections. A link to the ballot was sent to all ASN voting members in good standing on Monday, March 7, 2016. If you did not receive the call to vote, please contact the ASN office at sec@nutrition.org. The ballot will close on Monday, March 21 at 11:59 PM ET. Please visit the ASN Mission and Bylaws page to learn more about ASN governance. Thank you for your participation in the 2016 ASN election.

I look forward to seeing all of our ASN members at EB2016 in San Diego. ASN's Scientific Sessions & Annual Meeting kicks off April 2, and will feature more than 30 symposia, dozens of networking events, and five international forums. There is still time to register and join ASN in San Diego! I hope to see you all there!

Clinical Nutrition Internship 2016

The American Society for Nutrition is accepting applications for the 2016 Clinical Nutrition Internship Program. Targeted to medical students, this program is designed to increase the role of nutrition in the practice of medicine, medical research, health promotion, and disease prevention by providing a unique combination of educational experiences to medical students. This program is meant to supplement nutrition education not always present in the medical school curriculum that ASN believes is vital. This internship is specifically for those that do not have a degree in nutrition looking to

ASN Announces 2016-2017 Science Policy Fellows

ASN is pleased to announce the two 2016-2017 Science Policy Fellows: Allison Dostal, Ph.D., RD, is a post-doctoral associate at the University of Minnesota Medical Center-Fairview, and Lynn Ulatowski, Ph.D., is Assistant Professor of Biology at Ursuline College in Ohio. The year-long Fellowship started on March 1, 2016.

Nutrition Roadmap Aims to Guide and Advance Federal Nutrition Research

The Interagency Committee on Human Nutrition Research (ICHNR) released the first Nutrition Research Roadmap. The 2016-2021 National Nutrition Research Roadmap encourages an increased focus on research that can lead to more individualized advice for promoting health and preventing disease, and hopes to encourage more collaboration among government, academia and the private sector. The Roadmap identifies three key questions: How do we better understand and define eating patterns to improve and sustain health? What can be done to help people choose healthy eating patterns? And, how can we develop and engage innovative methods and systems to accelerate discoveries in human nutrition?

Office of Nutrition Research Appoints New Director

Christopher J. Lynch, Ph.D., has been appointed as Director of the Office of Nutrition Research \(ONR\). The ONR was established in August 2015 within the National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases (NIDDK) to replace the Division of Nutrition Research Coordination at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Lynch most recently served as Vice Chair and Professor, as well as Team Leader for Integrative Physiology of Obesity and Diabetes, in the Department of Cellular and Molecular Physiology at Pennsylvania State University's College of Medicine. Dr. Lynch will provide remarks during ASN's Opening Plenary Session during ASN's Scientific Sessions.

The American Journal of Clinical Nutrition: Editor's Pick

Huedo-Medina TB, Garcia M, Bihuniak JD, Kenny A, Kerstetter J. Methodologic quality of meta-analyses and systematic reviews on the Mediterranean diet and cardiovascular disease outcomes: a review. American Journal of Clinical Nutrition 2016;103:841-50.

Alexander DD, Weed DL. On the need for improved methodologic quality of published reviews. American Journal of Clinical Nutrition 2016;103:683-4.

Evolution of what we know about nutrition and health often takes the route of a long and winding road, and many times results from seemingly similar studies do not agree. These differing outcomes can be attributed to many factors including the fact that the populations studied were somehow different. Other times, sample sizes may not have been large enough to really test a hypothesis. To help get a more global view of what all the studies collectively say about something, researchers sometimes conduct meta-analyses and systematic reviews, which attempt to combine previously published studies' findings. This article suggests, however, that the quality of these types of reviews leaves much to be desired.
